What You Don't Know May Hurt You: What Judges and Lawyers Need to Know About Padilla v. Commonwealth and the Immigration Consequences of Criminal Convictions (CLE Training)

Friday, June 24th, 2011

10 AM - 4 PM

Immigration law is a complex field, and interacts with criminal law in a subtle manner. The direct legal consequences of a criminal conviction can result in a defendant later being denied admission to the United States, being kicked out of the United States, being permanently denied the opportunity to become a US citizen, losing US citizenship, and if you are already a US citizen, being denied the opportunity to bring your spouse, parents, or children into the United States. The human consequences can result in permanent separation from family, friends, and community. The session will introduce participants to the relevant immigration law necessary to work with non-citizen defendants.
