Measures of Coercive Control: Implications for Therapeutic and Advocacy Interventions in Cases of Domestic Violence, Sexual Abuse and Human Trafficking

Friday, May 28th, 2010

10 AM - 3 PM

Coercive control is at core of most cases of domestic violence, sexual abuse and human trafficking. However, the expression of these factors might be different in each of these crimes. This workshop helps advocates and practitioners discern between these crimes and obtain the necessary information to support cases in the legal system and gain pivotal information that could be important in the therapeutic process.
